

THE GALLOWES.

Paying the Death Penalty.

HANGING OF JAMES MALONE YESTERDAY.

HIS CALMNESS ON THE SCAFFOLD.

MALONE'S ANTECEDENTS.

[Special Dispatch to SALT RIVER HERALD.]

PRESCOTT, March 15.—James Malone paid the death penalty in the jail yard to-day at 12:15 P. M. He seemed to be perfectly cool and calm, and was anxious only that there might be no failure on the part of the United States Marshal in the arrangement of the gallows and strength of

THE STRANGLING CORD.

He maintained his innocence, and standing upon the gallows, shook hands with his soldier comrades, bidding them good bye as calmly as if he was only starting upon an ordinary journey. Recognizing the Sheriff in the crowd, he called out, "Good bye, Bowers," and after a pause remarked, "I can't do any good in this world, but I may in the next." Then the noose was adjusted, the black cap covered the face, the drop fell, and with a slight trembling of the body all was over, death coming with scarce a struggle on the part of

THE VICTIM.

Malone was tried and convicted at the last term of the United States Court, in Prescott, for the murder of Richard Lawler, at Camp Mohave. The crime was committed in January, 1876. His accomplice, Leopold Eith, is at Yuma serving out a life sentence for his part in the murder. Malone was a private in Co. K, Twelfth U. S. Infantry, enlisted in New York City, where his parents now reside. He was about 28 or 30 years of age, full, rather fleshy face, large, clear blue eyes, and weighed about 180 pounds. He was reticent about his former life, and did not wish his parents to know anything of him until after death. He has borne a bad reputation ever since his enlistment. Perhaps no man ever met death more deliberately and with such perfect composure.

[Special Dispatches to the HERALD.]

FLORENCE, March 16.—Coach on time. C. H. Beckwith is passenger for Phoenix.

Owing to the crowded state of the lines your special dispatches cannot be sent to-day. OPERATOR.

EASTERN NEWS.

[Special Dispatches to the HERALD.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16.—A heavy fall of snow at Cheyenne. The snow-drifts are five to twenty feet deep in the streets. The Union Pacific is badly blocked.

Gen. Grant is receiving ovations in Greece.

The McGarran grant expose implicates many prominent Republicans.

The city election in Oakland is a clear fight between the Republicans and the workingmen, the Democrats having no ticket in the field.

YUMA, March 16.—Yuma is full of prospectors fitting out for the interior of the Territory.

It is rumored here that the S. P. R. R. intend pulling down their bridge.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The House Judiciary Committee have approved, in a body, the laws passed by the Arizona Legislature, excepting the act granting special privileges to the Southern Pacific Railroad.

TOWN AND COUNTY.

Over a column of new advertisements this week.

Copper has been discovered in the White Tank mountains.

Dr. Thibodo has a card in this issue of the HERALD.

Several liens have been filed on the Champion mine, globe district.

Geo. Buck has purchased the Clydesdale stallion Warrior, four years old, weight 1100 pounds.

The first coach of the new stage line between this town and Prescott will arrive here Monday afternoon.

There will be a social dance at the Court-house next Monday evening, under the auspices of our young folks. Tickets, supper included, $3 50.

The Secretary of the Phoenix Canal Company has a notice in this issue calling for proposals for cleaning land and constructing part of the canal.

The telegraph office at Maricopa Wells is no more; it was moved to Phoenix Thursday evening, which makes this town the only repeating office in the Territory.

E. Brunson & Co. have leased the corner adjoining the HERALD office and started for Prescott to procure lumber; upon its arrival they will put up a building to be used as a saloon.

During the last two or three weeks our enterprising townsman Geo. E. Loring has been receiving heavy shipments of candies, tobaccos and fancy goods, to meet his increasing business.

Asher & Wollenburg, of the white House, Prescott, have their large stock of merchandise packed preparatory to being moved to this place. Mr. H. Ellis will take charge of the establishment which will occupy the first floor of the skating rink.

A new buck-board will be started on Monday from Phoenix to Cave Creek, leaving the store of A. Goldman between 8 and 9 o'clock. The rig is a handsome one—a double-seated buggy wagon—and will be a great convenience to travel and the miners of that growing district. Information furnished at this office.

Messrs Miller & Webb have established two stations on the north side of the Gila, and the direct route to Yuma by way of Caliente. The first station is on the Hassayampa, 30 miles west of Phoenix, and the second 28 from the Hassayampa and 25 from Agua Caliente. See advertisement.

Two tramps stopped at the station of Jas. A. Moore, Maricopa Wells, a few days since and demanded food, but were refused. They waited for a short time until the arrival of the mail coach, and when dinner was prepared for passengers, they slipped into the dining room and disposed of a square meal before being discovered.

AN "AD." OF THE PERIOD.

Every Saturday,
In the HERALD you may
Perceive in rymes,
An "ad." of the times;
No doubt in any,
Showing to many
A cultured mind,
Poetry, prose, wisely combined,
"Heap o' strain on the press,"
So the editor says,
To make amends
Doubtless he demands,
We gladly pay,
Beg to inform you to-day
That GOLDMAN did go
Last week to Triana,
And to Phoenix will send
The best no-ortment
You ever did see
In this here city,
So please do wait,
When the goods are arrayed,
On counter and shelf,
Then come yourself,
Bring child and wife,
And value your life,
Bring Pa and Ma,
And your mother-in-law,
To A. GOLDMAN'S,
General Merchandise Emporium,
PHOENIX, A. T., March 16, 1878.

SPIDER AND THE FLY.

A Gay Lothario and a Country Damsel.

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

A Blighted Maiden—Another Love—A Truant Lover—An Enraged Woman.

As our ubiquitous reporter was rambling through the spacious boulevards of the future Capital of Arizona—Phoenix—ruminating on the misfortune of his having incurred the royal displeasure of the non-sectional-john marion-prescott-enterprise man for influencing the Postmaster General to such an extent as to cause Phoenix to be elected as the general distributing point for the mails of Arizona, he was startled by the discordant sounds of a fierce wordy battle coming from a house close by. Ever on the alert for an item, he drew close to an open window and heard—

THIS IS THE STORY.

Phoenix boasts of many handsome young gentlemen, but this "o'er true tale" is interested in but one, and that one a gay young Lothario of the brunette cast.

It is the old, old story—gay, young, fascinating—a crusher of hearts. To be seen by the ladies once was for the latter to surrender at once, and he had but to select his victim. Of a pious nature, his attendance at Sunday School was punctual, but—in the company of a young lady. To the insinuating man she yielded her too trusting heart who, tiring of the toy threw it away for one newer and brighter to his fastidious taste. For a time she grieved, but hoped that her truant love would return to gladden the loneliness of her wearisome hours.

BUT NARY A COME.

Other lips and other eyes enslaved the heart of the young man "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned." No. 1 raved and stormed and vowed vengeance. She would foil this sanctimonious Sunday School scholar. She invoked the gods to hear her prayer. She would write a letter, and thus set the ball a rolling. All the world should know of her wrongs—this lecherous villain should have the mask torn from his face that all mankind might see his naked wickedness. She cared not for the new love—

HER OBJECT WAS REVENGE.

Swift and sure. She indited a letter to a young lady friend, in strict confidence of course, well knowing that she would get half a dozen others to help her keep the secret, setting forth her grievances.

The letter was duly mailed and received by the above mentioned young lady who showed the letter, in the strictest confidence, to her friend, and this friend—still in the strictest confidence, of course—to her lady friend, who in turn showed it to her mother, and who, in the balance of the strictest confidence on hand, showed it to the mother of the young lady now receiving the attentions of the festive young man—whom he is a brunette, a dapper little fellow, with a

LOVE OF A MUSTACHE.

The old lady was on her high horse in an instant. Fury flashed from her eyes, and the very cords of her arms swelled with righteous indignation. Her daughter—a deceiver in the family—great scott—that very instant she would go to that hussy and learn her a thing or two; the impudence of the "thing" to scandalize a respectable man in good standing in the community, enjoying the confidence of his employer, and a church-goer. She "went for that gal," and it was a piece of the old lady's mind, carrying down the deserted, that had attracted our reporter and robbed him of a brilliant idea that he had intended for this issue, whereby he hoped to demolish the Yavapaians and annex their county to Maricopa, as her legitimate spoil. He heaved a deep sigh as he quietly folded his carpet-bag under his arm and silently stole away.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

It is not often that an old citizen is called upon to vindicate himself through the public press, especially as against whom it is presumed to be a public officer of the law.

Ingratitude can be frequently forgiven when there are extenuating circumstances, but when from nursing a human being into prosperity, and as a viper it turns on every occasion, and without provocation to sting. When, under adversities, one man divides from his substance to sustain a needy and fallen brother, and when circumstances have changed the unfortunate to the high road of prosperity; when former friendships are forgot, and when even honor in partizan zeal is sacrificed, and when not only ingratitude but persecution takes the place of all noble sentiments and impels its slave into the most base and ignominious course of abuse; and when such a man seeks to foist himself on the public confidence, it is time that the people should be warned of the villainies and called to avoid the murky waters of this cuttle fish. "Mower," when left alone, is an honest word; but when added to "y," is changed at once from the best of meanings to the worst of meanings. Not content with the financial gain of early association, he now seeks the degradation of his former benefactor, and this all through ring motives and political slavery. It has even come to such a pass that all memory of any friendly act of assistance, and even of all honesty, is a matter of impossibility to this ring of public pilferous and ungrateful scoundrels. This man is now a public officer, beholden on the people for his subsistence, and he even has the audacity now to present his influential name to the good people of this community for reelection. Honesty we expect to find, and shall find, in some other man, for the coming office. Let the people rally.
